ROSSOSPERANZA

Italy, Summer 1989. Zena Randazzi is 16 and was born in a world that is not hers. At the magnificent family property, the wake of Zena's grandfather, a former fascist hierarch, is underway. While she's observing this hypocritical and conformist world with detachment, she candidly confesses to her mother that she poisoned Monsignor Lombardi. Her parents accompany Zena to Villa Bianca, a clinic that strives to make "normal" troubled kids from wealthy families. She meets Alfonso, Adriano and Marzia, all in re-education. On a foggy night, our young heroes will escape from the prestigious clinic...
